Races and base ball at the fair grounds to-morrow.

Attend the county fair this afternoon and to-morrow.

The postoffice at Northern Pacific Junction was robbed of $600 Monday night.

Electric lights will shortly shed their rays upon the dark doings of the City of the Pines.

Electric lights, street cars and sewers, all inside of a month. Who says Brainerd is dead?

Sheriff McLaren can congratulate himself that the escaped prisoners did not carry the jail off with them.

Brainerd merchants are laying in larger stocks of goods this fall than ever before. The trade demands it.

The city council are bestirring themselves these days and things do move—at least the Adventists have moved from Gregory square.

The city council have appropriated $200 to help the county fair along financially. Now if the people turn out to-day and to-morrow and do their part the fair will be a success.

There appears to be a peculiar state of affairs at Ferguson Falls in regard to the receivership of the land office and it is currently reported that the office will be abolished because no one can be found to take the position.

Robinson Post No. 5, of Albert Lea, Minn., has passed resolutions denouncing the Pioneer Press. As the Pioneer Press for a long time has been posing as the special friend of ex-soldiers, the action of this post is peculiar to say the least.

The Itasca Lumber company is to build a dam on Swan river, in Itasca county, in the N. 1 of the S. W. 1 of section 35, town 56, range 23 west. A hearing on the petition will be had before the county commissioners of Aitkin county on the 12th of September.

We do not believe in lynch law, but somehow we feel as though we would have had more respect for the people of Minneapolis if that brute Murray had been suspended by a rope around his neck from some tree or telegraph pole.

"Labor day," September 5, was celebrated in every large labor center in this country with processions, speeches and picnics. It is a hopeful sign of the times that nowhere was the red flag of the anarchists and socialists allowed to be unfurled. The real laboring men realize that the stars and stripes is a good enough flag for them.—Fergus Falls Journal.

It has been hinted to us that Gov. McGill expected to come to Brainerd during the county fair and deliver an address and so stated, but that the party who ought to have encouraged and secured this attraction, if possible, would not consent to the arrangement. It may be that Secretary Relf can inform the people on the subject.

The Grand Army boys, who have charge of the Sham Battle at the State Fair, say they will have 50,000 people on the grounds that day. The railroad companies have ordered more tickets and everywhere are evidences that the success of this part of the big show will be much greater than even the enthusiastic managers themselves expected when they started it.

President W. R. Merriam went to Detroit and Cleveland last week to secure attractions for the races at the Minnesota State Fair. He will try and arrange to have Harry Wilkes, Oliver K., Patron, Jay-Eye-See, all among the fastest trotters now on the American turf, trot in the big races. These horses will prove to be immense drawing cards. In addition to these dozens of the most prominent trotting, pacing and running horses of the country will be on hand. A large number of fast horses are already on the grounds and hard at work getting in shape to capture the biggest prizes ever offered at a state fair in this country.

The people of Minnesota, outside of Minneapolis, emphatically protest against the appropriation of any more money to improve the Falls of St. Anthony for the benefit of Minneapolis milling millionaires. The people of this city have just as good a right to ask that the government appropriate money to build our dam and improve the water power here. Minneapolis has already had $1,000,000 expended by the government to improve her water power, and now we believe the rest of the state should get some benefit if there is any more money expended. Anyway why are not Minneapolis millionaires just as able to pay for improving their water power as are the people of St. Cloud, Little Falls or Brainerd?

An ordinance has been introduced in the common council of St. Paul granting the right to build and maintain an elevated railroad between St. Paul and Minneapolis to The Rapid Transit Co., the same to be built within two years. The fare for round trip between the two cities shall not exceed 25 cents, or fifteen cents one way. It is expected that the railroads will reduce the fare between the cities to the above rates in the near future to discourage the enterprise.

The Minneapolis Lumberman in its last issue complains of the low stage of water in the Mississippi, and says it is due to the fact that nearly all logging dams are shut down accumulating water. What the Lumberman and other Minneapolis parties don't like in regard to this matter, is not the hindrance this low stage of water is to navigation, but because of the lack of power at the falls, and, naturally enough for a Minneapolisian, imagines that the river was created for the special benefit of Minneapolis, and that plenty of water for her mills should be furnished without regard for the interests of others. Unfortunately for the Flour City the lumbermen of this region don't think so, and they hold the water when they need it, hence the howl that arises. If Minneapolis miller's can't get sufficient power there, we would advise them to move their plants to this city, where plenty of power will be obtained the year round after the dam is completed, in a couple of months hence. Here we will have not only as much fall as at Minneapolis, but a great reservoir of water covering several thousand acres will be created during high water to be held in reserve for use during low water, thus insuring plenty of power at all times. It is more essential, it seems to us, that lumbermen have water, to float their logs out, than that the Minneapolis mills should have power the year round, or be put to the expense of moving to some locality where they will have, and we believe this opinion will be held by nearly every body not directly interested in the Minneapolis water power.

PROGRESS OF THE B. & N. W.
Col. Canfield, who pretends to be good authority on matters pertaining to the Brainerd & Northwestern railroad, sends the following to the Pioneer Press.

The summary of progress made by the Brainerd & Northwestern line, is of particular interest. Col. Hogeland, with two parties, run the line between Brainerd and Milaca and completed definite location, about Aug. 15. Meanwhile Engineer Molesworth and party pushed into the forests from Brainerd to Leech Lake, and about Aug. 1, completed that preliminary line. About July 15, Engineer Bent and party, outfitting here, pushed on ahead, to take the work up at Leech Lake, and to run across to the Mississippi river crossing, which is below Itasca lake a dozen miles. He progressed very slowly at first, being so far from a supply base, and until a few days ago had hardly got out of sight of Leech Lake, but now he is progressing, and is well out into the valley of the Ka-be-ko-na (lake and stream). The line he is locating is partly upon the preliminary, as run by Col. Hogeland last year, and partly upon that run by the Brainerd & Northwestern folks themselves a year previous. Also, in addition to the parties, Mr. Till and a party went out from Crookston and took up the line for final location where it was left off last year, at the end of the grade, some twenty-two miles southeast of Crookston. Mr. Till is now fast nearing the Mississippi at the point aimed at by Mr. Bent going from Leech Lake. When, however, Mr. Till and party had completed the preliminary between Brainerd and Leech Lake, he brought his party here to begin setting the stakes for final location, but found the question of a passage through Brainerd still unsettled. This depended on whether the town vote the bonus or not. If it did not do so, it was likely another line by the way to the dam would be sought, which was, under Mr. Hill's orders, entrusted to Mr. Molesworth. He took one of the parties left by Mr. Hogeland and began the dam line, sending his old party under Mr. Canfield back to run a much-desired cut-off end of Twenty-five-Mile lake. Both lines have been finished. Surprising to say, an easier line is found than the old, and half to three-quarters of a mile shorter, where every body supposed it would be the reverse, to run out by East Brainerd. The cut-off also succeeded in getting a good line from above Pine river, passing nearly four miles east of Twenty-five-Mile lake and coming out above Clark's cabin, four miles south of Fourteen-Mile lake. The distance saved is several hundred feet over a mile. The same party went next to make a shortening in the vicinity of Ten-Mile lake, on which they are now engaged, while Mr. Molesworth, with the other party, has returned to Brainerd, to commence final location on the lines as run, which can be made easier line. Thus it will be seen, from these details, that all the work preliminary to construction is completed and ready for the contractors, expected about this date, saving only the portion through the city itself. The prospect now is for completion of no more than the Milaca section this fall, if that can be done, but it looks as if that were certain.

TO SAVE HER HONOR.

Mary Sylvester, A Former Brainerd Lady Leaps From a Third Story Window and is Seriously Injured.

On Friday last intelligence was received in this city that Mary Sylvester, for nearly two years a resident of this city, to save her honor and escape from an inhuman brute, jumped from a third story window at 112 south Third street, Minneapolis, and sustained injuries so severe as to make her recovery doubtful. It seems that Miss Sylvester, who left this city some time last November and went to Minneapolis to secure employment, called on Lou Murray, a being, for he cannot be called a man, who runs an intelligence office at 517 Hennepin Ave., to secure if possible a situation in a store or some clerical position. Her bright face and trim figure evidently pleased Murray, for when she told him she wanted a place to work at clerking he suggested that he was in need of some one in his own office. She accepted his offer with a glad heart and went to work. During the afternoon Murray explained to her what her work would be, and seemed to make an especial effort to appear agreeable. When supper time came he told her to go out and get a lunch and come back. When she returned he went to supper, and when he got back, he told her to come with him and he would show her where she was to board. On the way he stopped at a newspaper office to leave some advertising, and then said: "Let's go to the dime museum. Its early yet." Mary at first objected but finally consented. It was ten o'clock when the performance was over, and they started for the "boarding house." This proved to be the Central house at 112 Third street south, kept by a Mrs. Sawyer. It is a so-called hotel conducted on the European plan, and occupies three floors of the four-story building. It has the reputation of being an assignment house, where rooms can be obtained by men and women without any embarrassing questions being asked. As they entered the little office on the second floor Mary noticed that her companion wrote something on a book and she caught a glimpse of the words "and wife." This raised her suspicions, and they were not allayed when going up the stairs they met a young man and a flashily dressed woman coming down. When a room was reached at the end of the hall on the third floor the women threw the door open and said: "I'll bring you some towels." When she did a few minutes later she closed the door and Mary found herself alone with Murray. She was ashamed and would have been more so had she known the character of the place she was in, but she tried to conceal all her agitation, and, asking Murray to give her a book belonging to her that he was carrying, sat down to read with the hope that he would leave. He did not, however, but on the contrary threw his arms around her. She struggled to free herself from his embrace and asked him to leave her. He answered by locking the door and putting the key in his pocket. Then he undressed himself, placing his pants under his pillow and lay down on the bed. He commanded her to undress and when she refused he arose and threw her on the bed. She cried and struggled and pleaded with him to spare her. "Is there anything I can pay to induce you to leave me as I am?" asked the poor girl. "Nothing," he answered, "I got you." Finally after he had struggled with her ineffectually, she asked him to let her up. He at length complied, and, laying down on the bed, pretended to sleep. His victim, wild with terror, tried to think of some plan of escape. She climbed on a chair and tried the transom, but, glancing down saw Murray looking at her. Escape that way was fruitless for she sprang up again and threw her down. This time he choked her almost into insensibility, and finally she gasped out: "let me up and I'll undress." She felt her strength going, and knew that her ruin would soon be accomplished. Suddenly the thought of the open window flashed into her mind. She would jump out and death would save her from dishonor. So she gasped out, "If you will let me up I will undress," and he released his grasp with a grin of triumph. When she regained her feet she went to the window pretending to unbutton her dress that he might not suspect her intention. Sitting down on the sill as though about to unlatch her shoes she suddenly whirled around and let herself down as far as she could with her hands, and then dropped into darkness, as she thought to death. She fell a distance of thirty-five feet into the little court, which opens into a private alley. The place was filled with boxes and barrels, and there she lay screaming with pain until her cries aroused a lively stable man by the name of DeLong, who procured medical aid, and with assistance removed her to a place of good character, where it was discovered that she had, by the fall, dislocated her right hip, broken five ribs and also her jaw, besides sustaining severe internal injuries. She has since received the best of medical care and it is now thought that she will recover.

When the news of this inhuman assault was made public it aroused the deepest indignation, and threats of lynching Murray, who had been arrested and lodged in jail, were heard all over the city, while for the noble and heroic girl nothing but expressions of admiration and the deepest sympathy could be heard. At the suggestion of the Tribune of that city a subscription was started for her, and over $1000 has been given by the public as a token of regard for one who would have suffered death to preserve her chastity and purity. As for the inhuman monster who assaulted her, an outraged public demands

Miss Sylvester was born at Swan River, near Little Falls, in Morrison county, where she lived until about three years ago, when, in company with her sister, she came to Brainerd, and resided here until last November. She was employed in this city doing housework, having worked in the family of Mr. James Quinn, on Ninth street, and at J. J. Howe & Co.'s mill boarding house, and several other places. She was very modest in her ways, and was respected by all who knew her. She has relatives living in this city at the present time. Mr. Fred Ahear, of the Journal force, being a cousin. The story of her suffering aroused a good deal of indignation in this city, and it is a good thing for Murray that he was in Hennepin instead of Crow Wing county.

LIVING ON FAITH.

The time is coming when all the pine will be cut at Aitkin that comes down the Mississippi.—Age. If the editor expects to see that time he will be a very aged citizen and can be classed as the "oldest inhabitant."

WHAT A HOTEL MAN KNOWS.

On coming out of the army, just at the close of the war, I suffered with indigestion, which soon developed into dyspepsia, which so worked on my system that I was reduced to only 135 pounds, although a brawny man six feet tall. For twenty years I suffered from chronic dyspepsia. Last February I commenced taking S. S. S., and after using eight bottles I had no trace of the disease left in my system, and I weighed 180 pounds.

My wife also suffered from dyspepsia. After I was cured I began treating her with S. S. S. with the happiest results. She rapidly improved, and is to-day comparatively well; but as a measure of safety, she continues its use until the few bottles on hand shall be consumed.

A Cure for Blood Disease.

The wonderful success of Swift's Sure Specific, known as the "S. S. S." remedy for diseases of the blood, is sufficient to command the attention of sufferers from blood poisoning, particularly those who have battled with this form of disease for years unsuccessfully with potash.

It is claimed that Swift's Specific is a purely vegetable compound, that is entirely free from potash and mercury mixtures, and that its action on the blood is direct, purifying and restoring without injury to the nervous system.

A list of certificates of the extraordinary cures effected by this medicine would fill a large volume, and a report of its ready sales in the United States alone would seem incredible. All druggists have it for sale.—New Orleans Picayune.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them. When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. H. J. Spencer to superintend the construction of the work.

new floor to the building.

Chas. P. Davis will appear at the Pap Thomas Post, G. A. R., will visit the State fair and take part in the sham battle, under command of D. W. Travis.

The boys will muster about fifty.

been in Washington Territory for some time, has been called to Brainerd on ac-at the saw mill Tuesday by getting it too close to the planer. The same day his

Pat. Murphy, who was assaulted in the Vendome saloon last Friday, was not so seriously injured as was at first sup-

The public are in ignorance as to "who struck Pat. Murphy."

Fyke's Comic Opera Company appear at the opera house on the evening of Oct.
24th. This is a good variety show, but

Tony Fairbanks, formerly of the bakery firm of Hill & Fairbanks, of this city, was burned up in a bakery at Spokane falls on Sunday last. He was sleeping

The Adventists, who have been holding meetings in their tent in Gregory square for three weeks, were notified on Tuesday that they must "move on" by command of the city council, as they were deemed a nuisance by that body.
Knowing that the notification came from the powers that be, the gentlemen in charge of the tents broke camp on Wednesday very gracefully. The rumor that they were located in the park without authority, is entirely unfounded, as they first obtained the consent of the mayor, who told them they might go there.

The Brainerd Tribune makes quite a bag in its last issue over the award of a job of school printing to them, and claim that such things occur every day. It is a well known fact that this job of work was done for about $6 less than it was actually worth to do the work and furnish the ink.

The Disinfectant bid was put in at just the right time, to say nothing about profit, some one else is entirely wrong about the work. This is the first job that the Tribune has been awarded on bid for several months, and they were so tickled over it that they had to stop over.

Attend the county fair this afternoon and to-morrow.

The postoffice at Northern Pacific Junction was robbed of $600 Monday night.

Electric lights will shortly shed their rays upon the dark doings of the City of the Pines.

Electric lights, street cars and sewers, all inside of a month, Who says Brainerd is dead!

Sheriff McLaren can congratulate himself that the escaped prisoners did not carry the jail off with them.

Brainerd merchants are laying in large stocks of goods this fall than ever before. The trade demands it.

The city council are bestirring themselves these days and things do move—at least the Adventists have moved from Gregory square.

The city council have appropriated $200 to help the county fair along financially. Now if the people turn out to-day and to-morrow and do their part the fair will be a success.

There appears to be a peculiar state of affairs at Fergus Falls in regard to the receivership of the land office and it is currently reported that the office will be abolished because no one can be found to take the position.

Robinson Post No. 3, of Albert Lea, Minn., has passed resolutions denouncing the Pioneer Press. As the Pioneer Press for a long time has been posing as the special friend of ex-soldiers, the action of this post is peculiar to say the least.

The Itasca Lumber company is to build a dam on Swan river, in Itasca county, in the N. 1 of the S. W. 1 of section 35, town 56, range 23 west. A hearing on the petition will be had before the county commissioners of Aitkin county on the 12th of September.

We do not believe in lynch law, but somehow we feel as though we would have had more respect for the people of Minneapolis if that brute Murray would have been suspended by a rope around his neck from some tree or telegraph pole.

"Labor day," September 5, was celebrated in every large labor center in this country with processions, speeches and picnics. It is a hopeful sign of the times that nowhere was the red flag of the anarchists and socialists allowed to be unfurled. The real laboring men realize that the stars and stripes is a good enough flag for them.—Fergus Falls Journal.

It has been hinted to us that Gov. McGill expected to come to Brainerd during the county fair and deliver an address and so stated, but that the party who ought to have encouraged and secured this attraction, if possible, would not consent to the arrangement. It may be that Secretary Relf can inform the people on the subject.

The Grand Army boys, who have charge of the Sham Battle at the State fair, say they will have 50,000 people on the grounds that day. The railroad companies have ordered more tickets and everywhere are evidences that the success of this part of the big show will be much greater than even the enthusiastic managers themselves expected when they started it.

President W. R. Merriam went to Detroit and Cleveland last week to secure attractions for the races at the Minnesota State fair. He will try and arrange to have Harry Wilkes, Oliver K. Patron, Jay-Eye-See, all among the fastest trotters now on the American turf, trot in the big races. These horses will prove to be immense drawing cards. In addition to these dozens of the most prominent trotting, pacing and running horses of the country will be on hand. A large number of fast horses are already on the grounds and hard at work getting in shape to capture the biggest prizes ever offered at a state fair in this country.

The people of Minnesota, outside of Minneapolis, emphatically protest against the appropriation of any more money to improve the Falls of St. Anthony for the benefit of Minneapolis milling millionaires. The people of this city have just as good a right to ask that the government appropriate money to build our dam and improve the water power here. Minneapolis has already had $1,000,000 expended by the government to improve her water power, and now we believe the rest of the state should get some benefit if there is any more money expended. Anyway why are not Minneapolis millionaires just as able to pay for improving their water power as are the people of St. Cloud, Little Falls or Brainerd?

An ordinance has been introduced in the common council of St. Paul granting the right to build and maintain an elevated railroad between St. Paul and Minneapolis to The Rapid Transit Co., the same to be built within two years. The fare for round trip between the two cities shall not exceed 25 cents, or fifteen cents one way. It is expected that the railroads will reduce the fare between the cities to the above rates in the near future to discourage the enterprise.

The Minneapolis Lumberman in its last issue complains of the low stage of water in the Mississippi, and says it is due to the fact that nearly all logging dams are shut down accumulating water. What the Lumberman and other Minneapolis parties don't like in regard to this matter, is not the hindrance this low stage of water is to navigation, but because of the lack of power at the falls, and, naturally enough for a Minnesotan, imagines that the river was created for the especial benefit of Minneapolis, and that plenty of water for her mills should be furnished without regard for the interests of others. Unfortunately for the Flour City the lumbermen of this region don't think so, and they hold the water when they need it, hence the howl that arises. If Minneapolis millers can't get sufficient power there, we would advise them to move their plants to this city, where plenty of power will be obtained the year round after the dam is completed, in a couple of months hence. Here we will have not only as much fall as at Minneapolis, but a great reservoir of water covering several thousand acres will be created during high water to be held in reserve for use during low water, thus insuring plenty of power at all times. It is more essential, it seems to us, that lumbermen have water, to float their logs out, than that the Minneapolis mills should have power the year round, or be put to the expense of moving to some locality where they will have, and we believe this opinion will be held by nearly every body not directly interested in the Minneapolis water power.

PROGRESS OF THE B. & N. W.

Col. Canfield, who pretends to be good authority on matters pertaining to the Brainerd & Northwestern railroad, sends the following to the Pioneer Press.

The summary of progress made by the Manitoba in its survey of the Brainerd & Northwestern line, is of particular interest. Col. Hogeland, with two parties, ran the line about July 1. Mr. Molesworth and completed definite location, about Aug. 15. Meanwhile Engineer Molesworth and party pushed into the forests from Brainerd to Leech Lake, and about Aug. 1, completed that preliminary line. About July 15, Engineer Bent and party, outfitting here, pushed on ahead, to take the work up at Leech Lake, and to run across to the Mississippi river crossing, which is below Itasca lake a dozen miles. He progressed very slowly at first, being so far from a supply base, and until a few days ago had hardly got out of sight of Leech Lake, but now he is progressing, and is well out into the valley of the Ka-be-ko-na (lake and stream). The line he is locating is partly upon the preliminary, as run by Col. Hogeland last year, and partly upon that run by the Brainerd & Northwestern folks themselves a year previous. Also, in addition to these parties, Mr. Tiland a party went out from Crookston and took up the line for final location where it was left off last year, at the end of the grade, some twenty-two miles southeast of Crookston. Mr. Til is now fast nearing the Mississippi at the point aimed at by Mr. Bent going from Leech Lake. When about July 1, Mr. Molesworth had completed the preliminary between Brainerd and Leech Lake, he brought his party here to begin setting the stakes for final location, but found the question of a passage through Brainerd still unsettled. This depended on whether the town vote the bonus or not. If it did so, it was likely another line by the way of the dam would be sought, which was, under Mr. Hill's orders, entrusted to Mr. Molesworth. He took one of the parties left by Mr. Hogeland and began the dam line, sending his old party under Mr. Canfield back to run a much-shaded cut-off east of Twenty-five Mile lake. Both lines have been finished. Surprising to say, an easier line is found that the old, and half to three-quarters of a mile shorter, where everybody supposed it would be the reverse, to run out by East Brainerd. The cut-off also succeeded in getting a good line from above Pine river, passing nearly four miles east of Twenty-five Mile lake and coming out above Clark's cabin, four miles south of Fourteen Mile lake. The distance saved is several hundred feet over a mile. The same party went next to make a shortening in the vicinity of Ten Mile lake, on which they are now engaged, while Mr. Dolesworth, with the other party, has returned to Brainerd, to commence final location on the lines as run, which can be made now very rapidly. Thus it will be seen, from these details, that all the work preliminary to construction is completed and ready for the contractors, expected about the date, saving only the portion through the city itself. The prospect now is for completion of no more than the Milaca section this fall, if that can be done but it looks as if that were certain.

TO SAVE HER HONOR.

Mary Sylvester, A Former Brainerd Lady Leaps From a Third Story Window and is Seriously Injured.

On Friday last intelligence was received in this city that Mary Sylvester, for nearly two years a resident of this city, to save her honor and escape from an inhuman brute, jumped from a third story window at 112 south Third street, Minneapolis, and sustained injuries so severe as to make her recovery doubtful. It seems that Miss Sylvester, who left this city some time last November and went to Minneapolis to secure employment, called on Lou Murray, a being, for he cannot be called a man, who runs an intelligence office at 517 Hennepin Ave., to secure if possible a situation in a store or some clerical position. Her bright face and trim figure evidently pleased Murray, for when she told him she wanted a place to work at clerking he suggested that he was in need of some one in his own office. She accepted his offer with a glad heart and went to work. During the afternoon Murray explained to her what her work would be, and seemed to make an especial effort to appear agreeable. When supper time came he told her to go out and get a lunch and come back. When she returned he went to supper, and when he got back, he told her to come with him and he would show her where she was to board. On the way he stopped at a newspaper office to leave some advertising, and then he said: "Let's go to the dime museum. Its early yet." Mary at first objected but finally consented. It was ten o'clock when the performance was over, and they started for the "boarding house." This proved to be the Central hotel at 112 Third street south, kept by Mrs. Sawyer. It is a so-called hotel conducted on the European plan, and occupies three floors of the four-story building. It has the reputation of being an assignation house, where rooms can be obtained by men and women without any embarrassing questions being asked. As they entered the little office on the second floor Mary noticed that her companion wrote something on a book and she caught a glance of the words "and wife." This raised her suspicions, and they were not allayed when going up the stairs they met a young man and a flashily dressed woman coming down. When a room was reached at the end of the hall on the third floor the women threw the door open and said: "I'll bring you some towels." When she did so a few minutes later she closed the door and Mary found herself alone with Murray. She was ashamed and would have been more so had she known the character of the place she was in, but she tried to conceal all her agitation, and, asking Murray to give her a book belonging to her that he was carrying, sat down to read with the hope that he would leave. He did not, however, but on the contrary threw his arms around her. She struggled to free herself from his embrace and asked him to leave her. He answered by locking the door and putting the key in his pocket. Then he undressed himself, placing his pants under his pillow and lay down on the bed. He commanded her to undress and when she refused he threatened to throw her out of the door. She cried and struggled and pleaded with him to spare her. "Is there anything I can pay to induce you to leave me as I am?" asked the poor girl. "Nothing," he answered, "I've got you." Finally after he had struggled with her ineffectually she asked him to let her up. He at length complied, and, laying down on the bed, pretended to sleep. His victim, wild with terror, tried to think of some plan of escape. She climbed on a chair and tried the transom, but, glancing down saw Murray looking at her. Escape that way was fruitless for he sprang up again and threw her down. This time he choked her almost into insensibility, and finally she gasped out: "let me up and I'll undress." She felt her strength giving, and knew that her ruin would soon be accomplished. Suddenly the thought of the open window flashed into her mind. She would jump out and death would save her from dishonor. So she gasped out, "If you will let me up I will undress," and he released his grasp with a grin of triumph. When she regained her feet she went to the window pretending to unbutton her dress that he might not suspect her intention. Sitting down on the sill as though about to unlatch her shoes, she suddenly whirled around and let herself down as far as she could with her hands, and then dropped into darkness, as she thought to death. She fell a distance of thirty-five feet into the little court, which opens into a private alley. The place was filled with boxes and barrels, and there she lay screaming with pain until her cries aroused a lively stable man by the name of DeLong, who procured medical aid, and with assistance removed her to a place of good character, where it was discovered that she had, by the fall, dislocated her right hip, broken five ribs and also her jaw, besides sustaining severe internal injuries. She has since received the best of medical care and it is now thought that she will recover.

When the news of this inhuman assault was made public it aroused the deepest indignation, and threats of lynching Murray, who had been arrested and lodged in jail, were heard all over the city, while for the noble and heroic girl nothing but expressions of admiration and the deepest sympathy could be heard. At the suggestion of the Tribune of this city a subscription was started for her, and over $1000 has been given by the public as a token of regard for one who would have suffered death to preserve her chastity and purity. As for the inhuman monster who assaulted her, an outraged public demands

Miss Sylvester was born at Swan River, near Little Falls, in Morrison county, where she lived until about three years ago, when, in company with her sister, she came to Brainerd, and resided here for some time. She was employed in this city doing housework, having worked in the family of Mr. James Quinn, on Ninth street, and at J. J. Howe & Co.'s mill boarding house, and several other places. She was very modest in her ways, and was respected by all who knew her. She has relatives living in this city at the present time. Mr. Fred Ahear, of the Journal force, being a cousin. The story of her suffering aroused a good deal of indignation in this city, and it is a good thing for Murray that he was in Hennepin instead of Crow Wing county.

WHAT A HOTEL MAN KNOWS.

On coming out of the army, just at the close of the war, I suffered with indigestion, which soon developed into dyspepsia, which so worked on my system that I was reduced to only 135 pounds, although a brassy man six feet tall. For twenty years I suffered from chronic dyspepsia. Last February I commenced taking S. S. S., and after using eight bottles I had no trace of the disease left in my system, and I weighed 180 pounds.

My wife also suffered from dyspepsia. After I was cured I began treating her with S. S. S. with the happiest results. She rapidly improved, and is to-day comparatively well; but as a measure of safety, she continues its use until the few bottles on hand shall be consumed.

A Cure for Blood Disease.

The wonderful success of Swift's Sure Specific, known as the "S. S. S." remedy for diseases of the blood, is sufficient to command the attention of sufferers from blood poisoning, particularly those who have battled with this form of disease for years unsuccessfully with potash.

It is claimed that Swift's Specific is a purely vegetable compound, that is entirely free from potash and mercury mixtures, and that its action on the blood is direct, purifying and restoring without injury to the nervous system.

A list of certificates of the extraordinary cures effected by this medicine would fill a large volume, and a report of its ready sales in the United States alone would seem incredible. All druggists have it for sale.—New Orleans Picayune.

The DISPATCH bid was put in at just cost, and if we cannot get pay for our time, to say nothing about profit, some one else is getting it.

The work, this is the first job that the Tribune has been awarded on bid for several months, and they were so tickled over it that they had to sleep over.

The Brainerd Tribune makes quite a brag in its last issue over the award of a job of school printing to them, and claim that such things occur every day. It is a well known fact that this job of work was done for about $6 less than it was actually worth to the work and furnish the stock. The DISPATCH bid was put in at just cost, and if we cannot get pay for our time, to say nothing about profit, some one else is getting it.

The work, this is the first job that the Tribune has been awarded on bid for several months, and they were so tickled over it that they had to sleep over.

Signs of the Times.

There is no reason under the sun why the prospects for Brainerd's future are not better and brighter to-day than ever before. Public improvements are being inaugurated that will eventually bring us into prominence with the largest cities of the Northwest, and at no distant day. Work upon the dam is being pushed with all possible speed, and from seventy-five to 100 men are steadily employed. When this dam is completed and the public generally get acquainted with the advantages that Brainerd can, and will offer to manufacturers, look out for a howling boom. To show that the improvements at the dam are not the only public works under way, we will add that a system of sewers is being put in, work on which was begun Wednesday morning on Broadway, at the corner of Laurel, and already the trench in which the pipes are to be laid, has been opened for five or six blocks, south toward the high school building. This work will be pushed with untiring vigor until it is completed. H. C. Miller commenced to-day on the brick work, and will lay the pipes, and the trench will be shoveled. With this completed Brainerd's sanitary condition will be in good shape. An other straw to show that there is no end to public improvements when once started is the fact that electric lights will be put in at once, and W. S. Berry, the agent for the Thompson & Houston Electric Light Co., is here in company with others, and the work of putting in the wires will be commenced at once. A 30-amp first and second class capacity, increased as the demand for more light grows. Ties, timber and iron are being scattered along the route of the Brainerd street railway, and before the 1st of October the cars will be running to the dam. The system of horse power for street cars, so common in other cities, will be done away with, and electric motors will be put in operation on the Brainerd street car line.

The County Fair.

A visit to the fair grounds this noon revealed the fact that active hands had been busy fixing up the display of vegetables, etc., in the exhibition building although there were not half of the exhibitors who had their articles in place. Sam English and S. B. Hitt each have a wonderful collection of vegetables of nearly every known species and their mammoth growth show that Crow Wing county soil will do. One squash weighs 195 pounds, and is as large around as a barrel. John DeGregg also has a splendid display, among which is a quantity of the finest potatoes we ever saw. J. M. Martin has some 50 day corn which he thinks beats anything yet grown in this region.

Among the merchants who have taken the trouble to fix up displays in the building are: Chas. Clark & Co., hardware and crockery; Cohen Bros., dry goods; Day & Meagher, clothing and agents; Dressel & Shedd, jewelers; W. A. Smith & Co., clothing. T. R. Congdon has a fine display of paintings. As this item is prepared at noon of the first day in order to get into this issue, it is necessarily incomplete, and there will be many people who have articles on exhibition that are not mentioned. None of the fair articles were yet classified, but everything will be in shape by this afternoon.

An interesting programme of races, base ball, etc., has been completed for to-morrow, and everybody should attend. The admission is only 25 cents.

Gave Them Too Much Liberty.

The county jail was now without an inmate and Sheriff McLaren was left to tell the tale. There were four prisoners in the jail Sunday night when the sheriff locked things up, and little dreamed he that before he awoke, they would be gone. Monday morning, however, when his teamster got up at 5 o'clock, he noticed that a rope was hanging from one of the south windows, and looking up he saw that three of the iron bars that form a grating over the window were sawed off and bent up. He immediately informed Mr. McLaren, and on going into the jail it was found that not a soul was left to tell the tale. The prisoners had saved the jail. The prisoners had dug out brick from the wall on the east end of the jail until they reached the outer tier, the space being plenty large enough to let a man through, and all that was needed was to push the balance out with their feet and they were at liberty, but for some reason this means of exit was not made use of. There is no doubt however that the prisoners were aided from the outside, as the rope and the instrument with which they were let out were found hanging from the top of the jail. The charges against the men were not serious, Sheriff McLaren thought there was no harm in allowing them the liberty of the corridor, and they took advantage of the sheriff's kindness and made the best use of their time that they knew how. It has been found out that Jack Connors, in for grand larceny, and who is wanted at Wabpeton for manslaughter, in company with C. B. Francisco, the latter man having served his time last year, went west, and they stopped at the dance house, across the river, and took a supply of liquor and cigars before starting on their journey. James Butler, the Nevaders' burglar, and Joe Potrouk, the lad who assaulted the boy across the river, must have gone east, but no trace has yet been found of them.

Connors Captured.

Sheriff McLaren returned from Hawie this morning having Jack Connors in charge. Mr. McLaren went to that place yesterday, and as he stepped from the train he saw Connors standing on the depot steps waiting to take the train, and he made a bee line for him, and before he had the handcuffs on him, James Butler was also on the depot steps, but Mr. McLaren did not notice him until he started to run, and Butler got away while he was busy with Connors. This latter jail bird says he gave all the boys money to get away with, and that the "Kid" has gone to Glendive, but further than that he refuses to talk. He will have plenty of time for meditation as the sheriff will see that he does not have a chance to get away.

Butler's case is a matter of a few days, as he has no money and the officers of the law in that section have been notified and are waiting for him.

Dewey's former paper, the Fisher Bulletin, has suspended.

J. G. Smith has moved into his new barber shop at the Commercial hotel.

NO FLIES ON US.

Brainerd is to have the electric light and the city will be brilliantly illuminated as soon as the plant is in readiness. The city among the pines has not been enjoying very much prosperity for the past few years but it is again becoming awakened to a new life. The city is among the live progressive towns of Northern Minnesota.—Duluth Herald.
